Anti-Gender Campaigns in Europe
Mobilizing against Equality
Edited by Roman Kuhar and David Paternotte

“In this well-documented comparative study, the authors offer country by country analyses and evidence of international collaborations in campaigns against gender equality. They provide striking new insight into the way the epithet “gender ideology” has become a powerful instrument on the European political scene, wielded by coalitions of right-wing Catholics, Protestant evangelicals, and populists to protect “traditional” sex roles and to challenge the institutions of democracy.” – Joan W. Scott, Institute for Advanced Study

August 2017 | HB £85/$125 9781783489992 | eBook £27.95/$41.99 9781786600011

After decades of steady progress in terms of gender and sexual rights, several parts of Europe are facing new waves of resistance to a so-called ‘gender ideology’ or ‘gender theory’. Opposition to progressive gender equality is manifested in challenges to marriage equality, abortion, reproductive technologies, gender mainstreaming, sex education, sexual liberalism, transgender rights, antidiscrimination policies and even to the notion of gender itself. This book examines how an academic concept of gender, when translated by religious organizations such as the Roman Catholic Church, can become a mobilizing tool for, and the target of, social movements. How can we explain religious discourses about sex difference turning into massive street demonstrations? How do forms of organization and protest travel across borders? Who are the actors behind these movements? This collection is a transnational and comparative attempt to better understand anti-gender mobilizations in Europe. It focuses on national manifestations in eleven European countries, including Russia, from massive street protests to forms of resistance such as email bombarding and street vigils. It examines the intersection of religious politics with rising populism and nationalist anxieties in contemporary Europe.

“An essential reading to better understand the widespread reactionary backlash in today’s Europe. This book is a much-needed wake-up call. While anti-gay marriage movements have long been regarded as anecdotical, the authors show how deep their cultural and religious roots are. This meticulous account is an important step towards reinventing minority rights across European borders.”

– Bruno Perreau, Cynthia L. Reed Professor, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Table of Contents

Roman Kuhar is Professor at the University of Ljubljana, Slovenia
David Paternotte is Associate Professor at the Université libre de Bruxelles, Belgium.

For deliveries to the Americas www.rowman.com
For deliveries to the UK and rest of the world www.rowmaninternational.com